

The diagram illustrates the two-step process of a neural network layer. The top row shows the initial state with input and output vectors. The bottom row shows the state after a coding step, where the input vector is transformed into a sparse representation.

